

The Princess and The Guards

By: Gabriella Cusumano

There once was a princess in a castle. She was looking through books. Then the mail came. There was a letter for her. The letter said "I am going to steal your crown".

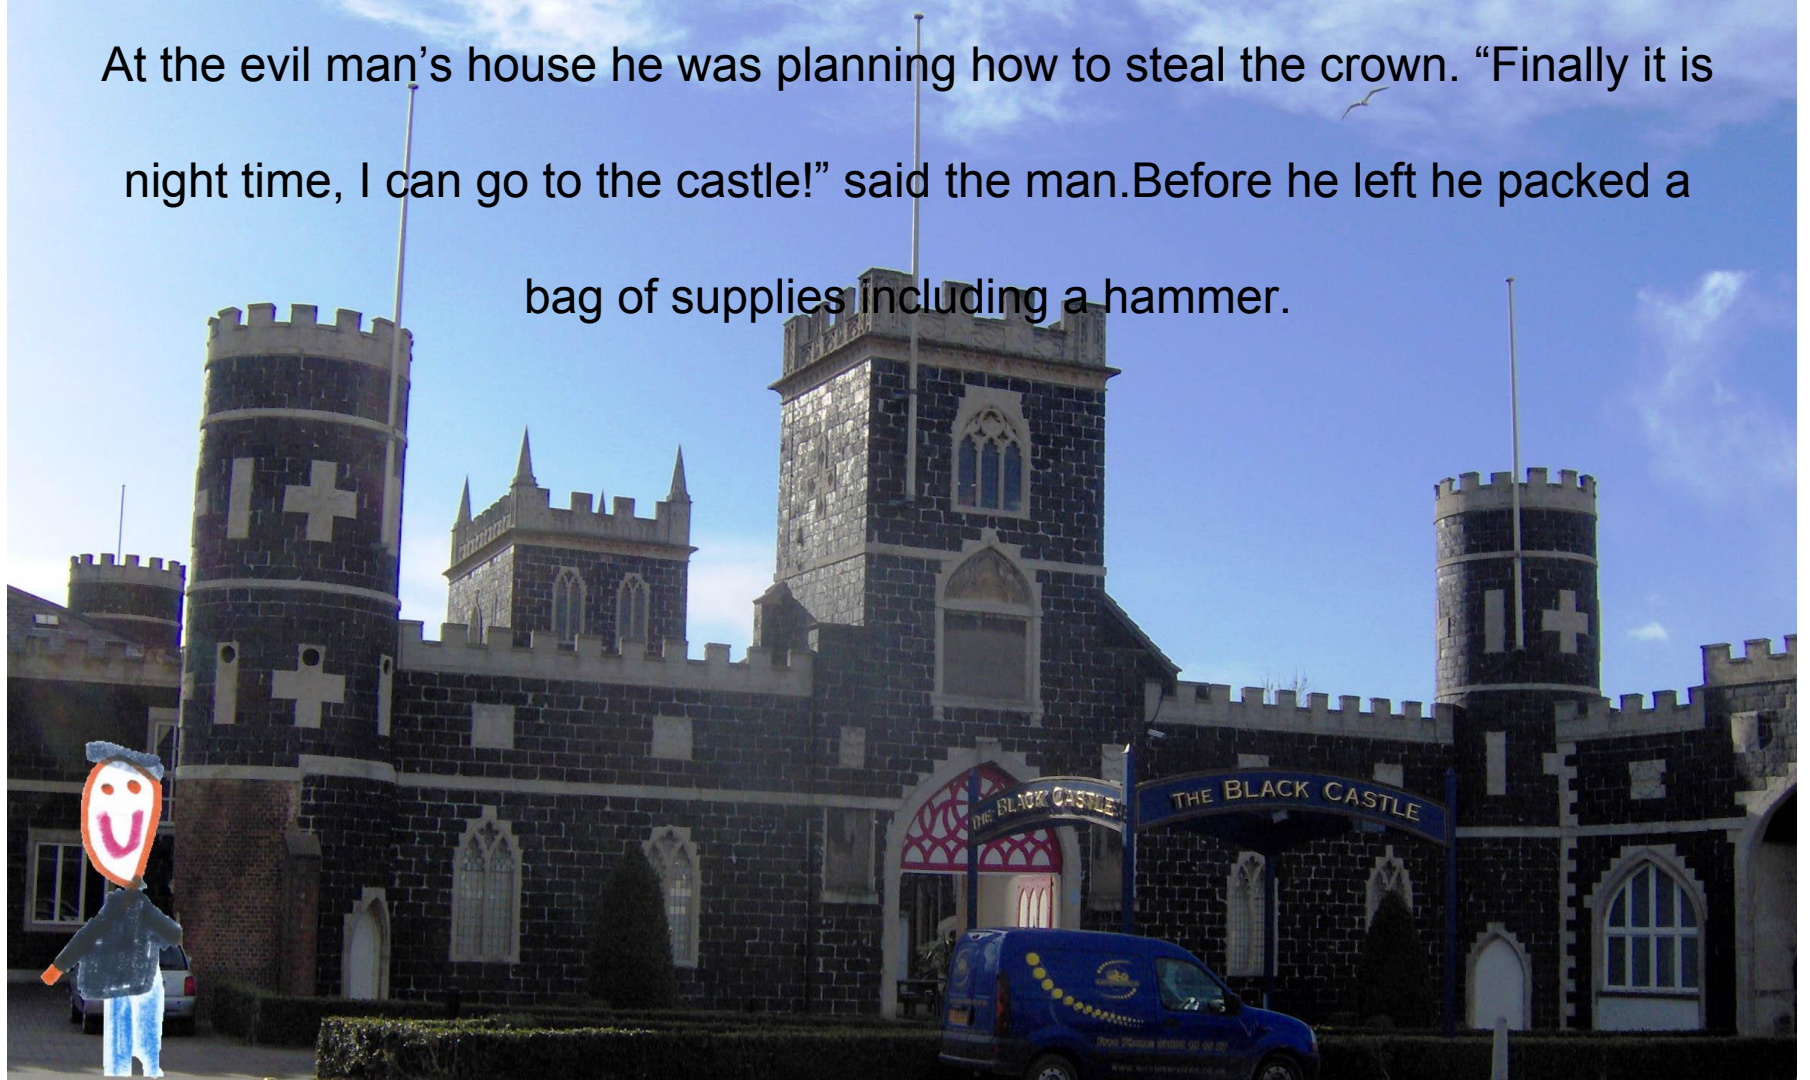

“Oh no! Someone is going to come and try to take my crown!” said the princess. Quickly she told the guards, she hid, and locked all the doors. Her hiding spot was under her bed and she was quiet. She stayed there all day.

At the evil man's house he was planning how to steal the crown. "Finally it is night time, I can go to the castle!" said the man. Before he left he packed a bag of supplies including a hammer.

He drove his car to the castle and parked nearby. He quietly walked up the castle. He was going to try to find the crown inside.

But he realized that the door wouldn't open. They were locked!

“Ahhh, they messed up my plan!” he yelled.

And he twisted the handle it still didn't open He knocked but no one answered. The guards and the princess kept hiding. The guards checked to see what the noise was about.

He got very angry and climbed the castle! He broke a window and got in the castle. He started looking for the crown but the crown was on the princess's head. She was still hiding in her bed.

The guards woke up and they saw the evil man was there. The guards caught him and put him in their car. They drove him to the cage.

The guards put him in a cage and the princess didn't have to worry about the evil man again. They lived happily ever after!
